Summary

At our May 2026 Happy Hour, From the Bookshelf to the Ballot, we welcomed Linda Kohn, President of the League of Women Voters of Maryland, and Clarence Crawford, President Emeritus of the Maryland State Board of Education. Together, they discussed the power of community voice, the importance of civic participation, and the critical role voting plays in shaping the future of education and our communities.

The conversation emphasized that meaningful systems change requires more than strong literacy policy—it requires sustained community engagement, informed voters, and elected leaders who are held accountable for educational outcomes. Participants discussed the importance of understanding local election dynamics, particularly the significant role primary elections play in determining leadership in many Maryland jurisdictions.

Key themes included:

- The importance of educating voters about candidates' positions on literacy and educational outcomes.
- The need to equip community members with clear questions to ask candidates seeking public office.
- Strategies for increasing voter participation and civic engagement, especially around local and school board elections.
- The role of community organizations in informing, educating, encouraging, and advocating for action from elected officials.
- The importance of maintaining accountability beyond election season by tracking commitments and monitoring progress over time.
- Opportunities to build a stronger parent and community voice around literacy improvement efforts in Prince George's County.

The discussion reinforced that voting is an important first step, but lasting change requires ongoing engagement, advocacy, relationship-building, and collective action from community members, organizations, and public leaders. To build upon this conversation and provide our network with actionable resources, we created this guide to help voters make informed decisions by learning more about the candidates seeking office and what we learned about their positions on literacy, education, and other issues that impact reading outcomes across Maryland.

Candidate Tracker: Board of Education, County Commissioners, County Council, and County Executive

Maryland READS reviewed publicly available candidate statements—including campaign websites, local candidate profiles, and other sources—through the lens of our mission to improve reading proficiency across the state.

Specifically, we looked for evidence that candidates support strategies to address the county's reading crisis. Below, we included tables for each county that outline our findings. The order of the candidates appears in the same order as the official list from the Board of Elections. The tables for each county are split into four columns, explained below:

Name	Website	Priorities Aligned?	Educator?
The candidate's name (First Last)	Link to the candidate's website, if available	A "Yes" indicates that we found evidence that the candidate supports strategies to address the county's reading crisis. If this column contains a "Yes," the candidate's row is highlighted in blue. A "No" indicates that we did not find evidence that the candidate supports strategies to address the county's reading crisis. A "No information" indicates that we did not find information on this candidate.	A "Yes" indicates that we found evidence that the candidate is either a current or former educator, e.g., a teacher, paraeducator, or principal. A "No" indicates that we did not find evidence that the candidate is either a current or former educator.
